

ABSTRACT

A process for drying/heat-treating nonwoven webs in which the web is partially dried under tension in a first drying zone and further heat treated under low tension or in a substantially tensionless state a second
5 drying zone. The process significantly reduces the occurrence of stretch-type defects in the nonwoven webs.